Weeping Over the Wrong Corpse. From the Cincinnati Commercial, Jan. 23.]

Two or three days ago, it came to pass that a man and a woman, residing within about a stone's throw of each other, on a street in the eastern part of the city, died within a short time of each other. The funerals were appointed for the same day and hour and at the pointed for the same day and hour and at the houses of each of the deceased large crowds of mourners gathered to bear testimony, by their presence, to the respect they entertained for our original Genuine Powders presence, to the respect they entertained for the departed. Conspicuous among the gathering at the house of the dead woman were an elderly lady and her companion, a lady much younger in years. They were specially noticeable by reason of the great grief which seemed to have settled down like a pall upon them, lengthening their countenances and causing them to weep incessantly.

In the face of their great carrying on, it seemed as singular as it was true, that nobody knew them. In the intervals between their spasms of grief, it was also noticeable that their respective countenances bore a half-puzzled look, and occasionally they would be caught going one eye around the corners of their respective handkerchiefs on each other, as if in inquiry. They soon became the observed of all observers, and seemed as much put out at the notice they attracted as mystified for an explanation of the situation.

At last the undertaker called upon the friends of the deceased to come forward and take the last look at the corpse. The two ladies were among the first to respond to the invitation, and their grief burst out afresh and in overwhelming volumes ere they had reached the coffin's side. At last they came to it. All was hushed in the room. Every eye was upon coffin's side. At last they came to it. All was hushed in the room. Every eye was upon them, for developments of a startling character were expected. The expectation proved true. They gazed upon the face of the dead, then upon each other. Their eyes grew in size, their mouths opened in gasping wonder; they thrust mouths opened in gasping wonder; they thrust their respective handkerchief into their pockets, and then, without a word of explanation or LASTING BOOTS—A large stock apology, or even a look around, made for the and very cheap, at WADDEY'S, 74 King street.

in the wrong house." To which the elderly one replied, "Yes, and my handkerchief's as wet as a dishcloth, too." The cat was then out of the bag. The couple had all this time been weeping over the wrong corpse, as their outpourings were meant to have been spent upon the dead man in the other house presided over by the King of Terrors. It is said that from the time of entering the last mentioned house neither of the ladies were observed to drop a tear, and that the old lady never once produced her kandkerchief during the entire ride to and from the cemetery.

A PLEA FOR NIGHT AIR. -But, in Heaven's name what air, as Miss Nightingale says, can we breathe at night, except night air? The choice lies between pure night air from without and foul night air from within; most people prefer the latter, it is true, but it is night air all the same, though they may not be aware of the fact. Did you ever test these two kinds of night air by going early in the morning into the room of a person brought up to sleep with closed windows, and immediately afterward into one where the sash has been lowered six inches from the top and raised six inches from the bottom? Well, what did you find? In one, however, pretty and well arranged, however, healthy, neat and well bred its occupant, a smell of bed clothes; or damp towels, of dust, or carpet-all slight, but all indicative of that used-up condition of the atmosphere which is so fatal to a sleeper. In the other no better situated or furnished, an elastic feel, a perfume of freshness which made breathing pleasant. Was it not so?

Or did you ever compare your own sensations after sleeping in fresh air with those produced after sleeping in foul? How many of the failures, the mischances of life, the morning dullness which hindered this or that, the refusal of the brain to work at a critical moment, the apathy, the blindness of perception, date back to that unaired bedroom which sent us forth unrefreshed to our work, and ushered in a depressing and discouraged day. But it is useless to contend with so deeply rooted a prejudice. Let us go back to our exiled friend, who certainly has a day claim, though he denied a nightly one, to our sufferance. How few of us recognize, as the long winter creeps away, how day by day we are insensibly contenting ourselves with the same breathed over air which, scarcely renovated since, supplied our lungs, yesterday, and the day before. "Open the windows, indeed," we cry, "why, it's all we can do to exist with them tightly shut."

Yet, but paradox as it seems, there is warmth in the very cold which an open window would admit. That is, the oxygen of the purer air, quickening the circulation and bringing the temperature of the head, hand and feet into proper balance, will of itself induce a glow which helps the fire to rewarm the room after

BLACK SNOW. - The Keokuk (Iowa) Constitution of the 13th says:—"On last Tuesday afternoon commenced the great snow storm of the winter, and the greatest storm of the West for many years. It continued until Wednesday afternoon; then set in a furious wind, which took the snow from the hills and piled it up in the valleys. Ou Thursday morning the inhabitants of the northern portion of this State, when they awoke, were not a little surprised at seeing the earth covered with a black instead of a white garment, as it was on the night before. This strange and unnatural phenomenon is accounted for on the supposition that after the wind had swept the snow off the hills then the dry earth was taken up and scattered over the face of the snow, giving it this peculiar

THE CREDIT MOBILIER MARTYRS -If services are held to-morrow in Bishop Poland's church, it is understood that a choir of correspondents will sing the following as an appropriate introductory hymn, dedicated to the Credit Mobilier martyrs:

From Hampshire's granite mountains. From Hoosier's swampy bends, Where Pacific's murky fountains Roll down big dividends; From many a gay deceiver,
From many a Congressman,
They call us to deliver Their names from Hoax Ames's ban.

THE SINGER FAMILY SEWING MA-L CHINE-Which is the best Sewing Machine is a point on which every company differs, each, of course, thinking its own the best; but if the point were to be decided by popularity, the Singer would far outstrip all others. The sales of this machine have been enormous, amounting to more than 180,000 in the year 1871 leaving all rivals far behind. The sales in this city amounted to two hundred and forty during the past year, which is without precedent. It is capable of performing more work and in a more substantial manner than any machine claiming public attention, sewing with equal facility the coarsest and finest material. References furnished of persons who have tested all the differences that the difference is the coarse of ent machines, and who pronounce the Singer in-comparably the best machine in existence. ORGANIC WEAKNESS.

Immediately cured and Full Vigor Restored.

This distressing Affection—which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgencies. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the natural powers are lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions weakened. Loss of Procreative Power Neryous, Irritability, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of Immediately cured and Full Vigor Restored. These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by the early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symtoms of Consump-

Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of Consumption. YOUNG MEN Who have injured themselves by a certain practice, already described, a habit frequently learned from evil companions or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyment of life by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in pernicious nabits. Such persons must, before cointemplat-
